Newly Remodeled A & P Store Is Re-opened Today

Self-Service Merchandising System Is Inaugurated at Food Mart

The newly remodeled A & P store reopened today, as a modern self-service food store. Extensive remodeling and decorating has converted the A & P store into one of the finest, most modern food stores in this area.

Announcement has been received from the company that Marion Rigby, who has been employed at the store for a number of years, has been appointed manager to succeed Earl A. Gibbs. She was previously assistant manager.

Gibbs served as manager of the store for several years, but was obliged to give up the work early this year when an army medical examination disclosed an illness that made his temporary retirement from a full time occupation mandatory.

The remodeled store incorporates the self service principle of grocery merchandising. Shoppers select their needs from shelves and displays, and place them in glider baskets. In this manner customers can shop as hurriedly or as leisurely as they like.

Since items are plainly marked with price and point values, if rationed, shoppers can readily see the price of each item purchased.

With a few exceptions, all merchandise is paid for at checkout counters, where checkers compute the amount of sale and furnish each customer with an itemized register receipt.

Mrs. Cora Hook, 86, Dies at Grayslake

Funeral services for Mrs. Cora A. Hook, 86, of Grayslake, were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the home, with burial in Ivanhoe cemetery.

Mrs. Hook, who was well known throughout this region, was the daughter of Washington and Jane Converse, and was born April 30, 1857, in Fremont township. On March 28, 1876, she was united in marriage with Oliver Hook, who died in 1937.

Survivors include a daughter, Mary Hook Stanton, whose husband, Frank Stanton of Grant Township, died two weeks ago, a son, John L. Hook; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild, and a brother, Fred Converse of Fremont township.

PAUL NIELSEN TAKES BASIC ENGINEERING

Among those graduating from an intensive course in basic engineering at recent Service School exercises at the United States Naval Training station, Great Lakes, Ill., was Paul Nielsen, 27, son of Mrs. Anna Nielsen, Route 2, Antioch.

Nielsen was selected for his specialized training on the basis of his recruit training aptitude test scores. Graduates from the 20 specialized courses taught at the Service schools are sent to sea, to shore stations, or to advanced schools for active duty or further training.

Atty. Edward C. Jacobs, who has received a commission as ensign from the navy department, has been notified that he is to report for duty June 28. Ensign Jacobs has conducted a law office here for the past three years and has built up an excellent practice. He recently moved his office to 390 Lake street. LeRoy Panzer is having troubles at Sheppard Field, Texas.

"Am writing to thank you for the paper that is being sent to me. It sure comes in when it's most needed. Have been in the hospital this last week.

"This country down here is 'hell's own land.' If the boys back home complain of rationing, let me know about it! We have dust to spare. We eat, sleep and drink this darn Texas dust. The heat is fine. You can get burnt in about 10 minutes, if you're not careful. Our hottest day has been about 120 degrees, and it's still 'cool,' I hear."

ANTIOCH FLIER GOES ON RECORD 1,700 MILE RAID

Lt. Gerald Runyard of Antioch was a member of a Liberator bomber crew that made a 1,700 mile flight from New Guinea to blast Biak island. The flight took more than 10 hours and had as its objectives an airfield and other aviation installations on Biak, which were successfully attacked. It was made with the aim of preventing serious Japanese air raid assaults on American forces at Hollandia and Aitape.

Miss Lillian Musch, who has been ill at her home during the past few days, is reported improved.

"THE HOUNDS OF SPRING"

Village Board Asks Prompt Payment of Auto License Fees

Needed repairs and improvements on streets and highways within the village limits were discussed at a meeting of the Antioch village council Tuesday evening.

It was pointed out that the street maintenance fund will be low during the next few months because of delays in the collection of taxes, and that the purchase of village vehicle license tags at this time on the part of car owners would bring in much-needed revenues for repairs.

There has been an excellent response to an appeal recently made by the village marshal, Fred Petersen, to keep dogs and chickens from running at large and endangering victory gardens.

Complaints have also been received by village officials to the effect that trespassers have also caused accidental damage to newly seeded plots. The patriotic co-operation of young folks and grown-ups in making sure that damage to gardens is avoided will be greatly appreciated by both residents and officials, members of the village board observed.

Henry H. Maulin, 48, who had for 20 years worked as a proofreader on the Chicago Herald American, died Monday night while at work in the composing room of that newspaper.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in St. Louis, with interment there.

He was the son of the late Albert and Alice Maulin. Survivors include his wife, Zona; three sisters, Mrs. Josephine Kuerfert, Mrs. Theresa Norman and Miss Agnes Maulin, and a brother, Albert Maulin, all of St. Louis.

Maulin was a member of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16.

Joseph Koelstra Services to Be Held Here Friday

Joseph Koelstra, 56, of Lake Villa, carpenter contractor, who had been ill for the past year, passed away at his home Tuesday, May 2.

Services are to be held in the Strang Funeral home here Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the Rev. John DeVries of Lake Villa officiating.

Koelstra had made his home in Lake Villa for the past 32 years, and was a member of the Lake Villa Fire department. He was born in Tynji, Netherlands, July 9, 1888, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Koelstra.

He was united in marriage in 1910, in the Netherlands, to Jennie Hickema, who preceded him in death 21 years ago.

Survivors are three daughters, Mrs. Jessie Brownlee, of Lake Villa; Mrs. Grace Englund, of Lake Villa, and Mrs. Alice Larsen of Fox Lake.

Fire at Pickard Plant Causes $250 Damage

Failure to close a vent in a kiln at the Pickard plant on Depot street resulted in a fire that caused damages estimated at $250, Friday morning at 2:40 o'clock. The building was believed to be damaged to the extent of about $100, the remainder of the damage being suffered by the kiln.

Pfc Martin Furlan Receives Silver Star, Purple Heart Medals

The "Silver Star" medal "for gallantry in action" has been awarded to Pfc. Martin Furlan, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Furlan, Route 1, it was learned here this week.

Pvt. Furlan received the "Purple Heart" award "for military merit" last November, after he had been wounded in action in Italy.

The medals have been on display this week in the window of the Antioch News office.

Cicero Man Catches 16- Inch, 2 1/2 Pound Crappie

A crappie that is believed to be the largest caught in the Lakes Region for some time, and something of a record-breaker, was the 2 1/2-pound, 16-inch specimen caught near Haisman's resort in Lake Marie Tuesday afternoon by Otto Bares, Cicero, Ill.

Bares, who brought his catch into the News office for proof, was fishing with a steel rod and small hook, and was using a dead minnow—the last he had with him—for bait.

While crappie weighing up to three pounds and measuring as much as 18 inches in length have been caught in the lakes region in past years, the species seldom attains such size. Bares' catch is believed to be the largest crappie caught in the lakes as yet this year.

THOMAS W. CURNES PROMOTED TO SGT.

Eleventh AAA Headquarters—Corporal Thomas W. Curnes, 240 Depot St., Antioch, Ill., now assigned to duties as a Special Radar Operator with the Eleventh Army Air Force in the Aleutian Islands, has been promoted to the rank of Sergeant, Eleventh AAF Headquarters announced today.

Sergeant Curnes was inducted into the Army at Camp Grant, Ill., on March 17, 1942, and attended the Coyne Radio School, graduating on July 11, 1942. He has served for twenty months in the Aleutians and has been awarded the Asiatic-Pacific Ribbon with the Aleutian Campaign Star.

Prior to entering the service, Sergeant Curnes was employed with the Chicago Rivet and Machine company. His father, Walker H. Curnes, lives at 240 Depot street, Antioch, Ill.

As a member of the Eleventh AAF, Sergeant Curnes is part of the first Air Force to bomb Japanese homeland in this war. After routine bombings of Attu last year, the Eleventh AAF lent air support to the ground troops retaking that island, then pounded Kiska daily until the Japanese deserted that island and, with the Aleutians retaken, crossed 1,000 miles of water to hit the Kuriles and become the first air raiders to hit the Japanese homeland since General Doolittle's famous Tokyo raid in 1942.

First attempted as daring reconnaissance missions, these Paramushiru and Shimushu bombings, and deeper Kuriles raids are now routine.

"Blue-and-White" Tea Follows Afternoon Program at St. Peter's Hall

St. Gilbert's church in Grayslake will entertain the next meeting of the organization, to be held in October. Rationing Points Are Taken off Most Meats

All meats except beef steaks and beef roasts were made ration-free, effective at midnight last night, in accordance with announcements made by the Office of Price Administration yesterday.

The action was taken, OPA Administrator Bowles said, because lease-lend buying had been halted for the time being; because of reduced army and navy demand, the crowding of storage space and the hope that the action will bring more meat to market this summer.

Because of the wide variety of meats now becoming available without the spending of red ration points, the red points will have to last over a four-week period instead of the present two-week period. Commencing Sunday, 30 red points will be validated every four weeks.

Red stamps R8, S8 and T8 will become valid Sunday for the purchase of butter, margarine, cheese and cheese products, evaporated milk, beef steaks and roasts, for which points are still required. These stamps will remain valid until June 3.

Dogs Kill Nearly 500 Ducklings at Weber Farm

Nearly 500 ducklings that would have attained marketable size in three or four weeks were killed by two dogs that visited the famous Weber duck farm on Douglas lane near Sand Lake at Lake Villa early Saturday morning. Guards armed with shotguns were posted to watch for a possible return of the animals. Sheriff's Deputy Stanley Christian, who investigated the killing, reported that the dogs appeared to have been large animals and to have killed for sport, rather than because of hunger. There are more than 80,000 ducks in all stages of development on the ranch, which is owned by William M. Weber.

QUEENS DIE PROUDLY

"The last to leave her was Sergeant Leonard Coleman, her turret gunner—we could see him working his 50's, but now he left his turret. We saw him go by the side window, and he was struggling to put on his parachute—which he hadn't worn in that cramped top turret, for it would have interfered with his sighting and shooting—struggling to get his arms through it like a jacket among those licking flames. We saw him go back to the rear escape hatch, saw him drop through it with his clothes afire, saw him jerk the cord—he must have done it immediately, because by the time he had cleared the flaming tail by twenty feet, we saw his chute crack tight-open. But then, almost instantly, we saw that parachute begin to billow loosely like a silk scarf in the wind, because—Oh, God!—we saw something else. We saw the poor guy had had time to jump without having time to buckle the belt strap of his parachute—the price he paid for staying in his turret for a few last shots at Zeros, protecting the others while they jumped. Maybe he figured he could hold the ends of the belt together with his hands. Maybe his hands were so burned he couldn't work the clasp.

CHAPTER XV

"When that chute cracked open, the jerk pitched him out of the harness head-first, and as the chute billowed loosely back of the plane's tail, we saw him dropping down with his clothes smoking, getting littler and littler. Oh, Heaven! I couldn't look any more.

"The plane was settling faster, in that steepening curve now, because it was all over. So we who have seen a Fortress die in battle can tell you how they do it. They die like the men who fly them and fight in them would want them to die! They die like the great Sky Queens they are. And Queens die proudly.

"Just then I heard our pilot Captain Strother over the interphones, telling Jim Worley, our bombardier, that he'd opened the bomb-bay doors, and for the bombardier to go back and salvo all the bombs and the gas tanks carried there. He'd seen what happened when the other two planes got hit in the bomb bay—it was obvious the Japs knew our bomb-bay tanks weren't leak-proof, and down at this low altitude, we were at their mercy. At high altitude they're lucky if they can get above and ahead of you, to come in for one nose-on attack. After that they have the devil's own time skidding around in the stratosphere to catch up for another. But down here at 7,000 they could flip over quick, and come in again and again.

"Well, Jim Worley is about to obey, but just then he sees a Zero coming right in on us, head-on—and his gun there in the nose is the only one who can handle this attack, so he's got to stay on it.

"He gives her one burst and then starts to salvo his bombs and gas tanks, but there's a crashing sound, and the controls don't work. He doesn't realize a bullet has wrecked his controls—doesn't know what has happened.

"Then all of a sudden—Bang!—there's a hell of an explosion inside our plane, and dust, and the stink of gasoline. After seeing what had just happened to the other two planes, we thought it could mean only one thing. We must be on fire! And later on, ask me about that railroad spike.

"But somehow there were no flames, so we kept on pounding away at the Zeros swarming around us—it was the only thing to do. What had happened was that a bullet had smashed into our compressed-oxygen tank, and also cut a gasoline feed line, so that gas was spurting all over the cabin, but we didn't know it then. Finally the tail gunner, seeing gas streaming along the plane's belly past him to trickle off the tip of the tail, guessed what had happened, and called out to the rest of us over the interphones for God's sake not to smoke. With that cabin filled with pure oxygen and gasoline fumes, it would have been a bad idea. Don't forget to ask me about the railroad spike.

"Well, pretty soon Strother dove us into a friendly cloud where we lost the Zeros, and I could climb down from my gun to inspect the damage. I found that when that bullet burst our oxygen tank, it had blown two square feet of plywood out into the cabin, and blown loose the bomb-release controls. It had sounded like a 20-millimeter cannon shell exploding in there. Then I located the gas leak and pulled the emergency release, salvaging gas tank and bombs, and hoped they wouldn't land in some poor peasant's back yard, because we were back over land now.

"When we got back to our field and were telling about it, someone asked our tail gunner if he wasn't scared when, right after watching those other two go down in flames, that bullet burst our oxygen system with a big bang. 'No,' he said, 'there wasn't time to be scared. But if someone had pushed a railroad spike into my mouth, I would have bit the head of it off, clean and sharp.'

"But we could see the Japanese were learning. Their tail attacks against the new E-model Fortresses had finally taught them a lesson, and this was the first time they had attacked us head-on. Of course they never could have done it so successfully had they not surprised us with that forged emblem. But most important of all, they never could have done it had we been at our proper altitude.

"The Flying Fortress was designed for the high skies, and if you keep her in her groove, for her crew she's the safest plane in the air and for her enemies the most deadly. We found this out not from any book, but we learned it that day in combat, which is learning it the hard way. And we hoped it wouldn't take too long for this lesson to percolate upstairs."

"On the way home," said Frank Kurtz, "three of the remaining Forts hit a heavy afternoon rainstorm. Visibility and ceiling were zero, and for hours they flew around the island of Madura, off the coast of Java, looking for a place to land. When gas was almost gone they decided to beach them. Luckily no one was killed, but two of the three were completely washed out on the seashore rocks—they set fire to the wreckage so the Japs couldn't find anything about the planes. But Lieutenant Fred Crimmons did a magnificent job of setting his plane down on the beach in the rain. He made two passes, looking at his gas in between, then squared away and brought her in—she held firm, sinking only a little. I had the harvester's wrecking barge, with tools and Dutch engineers, on its way before daybreak. They were having a little trouble with the natives there—they were warned against Jap parachutists, and our boys had to yell at them a password the Dutch had taught them to use if we were shot down: 'Kancha Kompanee!' It means 'Our Army,' they explained to us.

"They worked a full day—shoring up the plane, building a base of logs and sand under it, clearing a runway strip. And then, in Java's regular afternoon rainstorm, in came old Freddy onto Surabaya Field. He explained he'd stripped the plane of everything he could unscrew to lighten it and then, turning the motors on full blast, had made a jump take-off from that little strip. He grabbed a sandwich and went on in to Malang.

"The air-raid alarm in Surabaya was now going off regularly, sometimes three times a day, because the Java Sea was stillier than an old sock with Jap carriers. Colonel Eubank was now faced with a real problem. The three main bases for our Forts were at Malang, Madiun and another town which was spelled Jokjakarta, but the American boys couldn't chew this one, so they all gave it up and everybody just called it Jockstrap.

"The Dutch had no system to detect planes coming in from over the sea. Their only warning system was a tiny island about seventy-five miles out. It had a radio, so Surabaya got fifteen minutes' notice and Malang about thirty.

"So what was the Colonel to do? Our P-40's were badly overworked, so when the alarm sounded, if the Forts took to the air the Zeros might shoot them down, while if they stayed on the ground, the Jap bombers might blow them up. Never were we able to keep more than twelve planes in the air, even including reinforcements, for we were losing them about as fast as they were coming in, and a number were always under repair and therefore un-flyable.

"Also we had some bad breaks in luck. One afternoon Lieutenant Ray

Cox had his plane up on a high-altitude test—giving the superchargers a workover. With him in the cockpit was Johnny Hughes, who had been checked off as a first pilot just after we arrived in Java. They finished the test, and at two o'clock were spiraling down when Zeros came over to strafe the field below. These strafing Zeros also had a top cover of Zeros hanging up at 18,000 feet, in case our P-40's might come in to break up their ground party.

"Well, when the strafing began, our boys in the control tower remembered that Ray was up, and they tried to tell him by radio to fly south over the sea for an hour, until the Zeros were gone—that was our usual procedure.

"But Ray and Johnny, alone in this plane, probably intent on their test, must have had their headphones off. Anyway they couldn't be reached, although the boys on the ground tried frantically to let them know what they were coming down into. Finally they saw three Zeros hit them at 15,000 feet. Ray immediately turned out to sea, while Johnny probably did what he could on the guns. But one gunner can't cover every side at once, and they didn't stand a chance against three Zeros. Next day the plane was found shot down and burned about twenty miles from Malang Field."

"Shortly after that," said Boone, the gunner, "we had a tough little mission—a night flight to bomb a Jap task force which was attacking one of the islands down toward Australia. I forget which one it was if I ever knew—that was the navigator's business. Six of us took off from Malang, but before we started for the target, we had to fly over Jockstrap and load up with Dutch bombs—they were running low at Malang, and the Dutch at Jockstrap had plenty. Then we took off at eight o'clock at night in some of the dirtiest weather I ever hope to fly. In that country, a storm at night is so black it's like going into the closet under the stairs where all the old overshoes are, and pulling the door shut. For our rendezvous we turned on the wing lights. But even with them it took us forty-five minutes to assemble. Then we went up to 18,000 trying to climb out, but we were still in that storm. It was darker than the inside of a black cow, but every now and then the lightning would rip everything wide open—the whole cloud around us would flame up, and you could see to read fine print in the cabin. We were like a bug in a neon tube. Then blackness would close in, and it would be a long time before your eyes could make out the little blue-pink exhaust flame of the plane next to you.

"After about an hour we had plowed through the storm, and were flying above scattered moon-flecked overcast down below us at about 4,000.

"At 10:30 we were over the target, and we glided down to 3,000 feet to see what was going on. Through the hunks of clouds we could see the gun flashes of Jap warships lobbing shells into that poor old town. Then we would see the flash when the shells exploded. They had fires already going in several places, and of course the town had absolutely nothing to hit back with.

"But clouds protected the Jap fleet, so we couldn't make a run on just where we guessed those gun flashes were the thickest. Bombs were scarce. Orders had been if we didn't find a good target, to bring them home, so we did. We had no flares aboard to light up that harbor, or any installation for dropping them. The old Forts were never cut out for nightwork, but of course in a war you sometimes get into cracks where you use whatever you've got to do what must be done.

"We hated it, leaving that poor old town burning while the Japs sat out there and tossed shells into her, without giving it even a little help—but it had to be.

"On our return we found that storm had moved on down Java and was squatting right on Malang Field. The turf was soaked into apple jelly, and our pilot did a wonderful job on the landing. We were single pound weight on the brakes would start our twenty-five tons sliding over that slippery field like it was the frozen surface of a pond. So to keep from piling up in a crash at the end of the runway (remember, we had all our bombs aboard and couldn't dump them because they were precious), our pilot ground-looped her, so she would start sliding sideways in that muck. Skidding along, he waited until she had revolved in a 180-degree turn and was sliding backward. Of course she would then have crashed tail-first into the end of the field and blown up all of us, but he was able to stop her by gunning the motors. Even if the wheels couldn't bite into that slippery ground, the propellers could bite the air. It was neat.

"Another grine we had on Malang Field was the food. The mess was in charge of the Dutch. They served only one hot meal a day, and this was always at noon—usually hot soup with boiled beef and potatoes. But I only got to eat this hot noon meal three times—I was always out on missions, which should give some idea how busy we were.

"They had baskets of food for us to take up in the plane—pineapples, tropical fruit, and then sandwiches which were either a slab of cheese or else raw bacon, in between two thick hunks of bread. We found this heavy stuff made gas in your intestines and just as you got to high altitude going over the target, this gas swelled up, giving you the gripes. So we'd eat the fruit and throw the sandwiches away.

"Also Malay cooks don't know hot food—the breakfast soft-boiled eggs were always hard, and they'd bring out a No. 10 can of jam for a hundred and fifty men. What with getting two or three hours' sleep, at night, we all lost weight—two of us lost nineteen pounds and Charlie lost twenty-three, and it wasn't scared off us, either.

"We all felt that with a decent meal we could do a lot more. So as much as we needed sleep, at eight or nine o'clock at night we'd take the Dutch bus into town to a restaurant owned by a Javanese, which had a Dutch waitress who spoke English, just to buy us a thick, rare steak. Americans have got to have red meat to fight on. Give them that and they'll manage to sleep when they can.

"We finally took over the mess, but that didn't help much, because by then the field was being bombed regularly. The mess sergeant had his kitchen blown up three times in a single day, and this didn't improve the flavor of things. But the worst thing was, he'd got hold of three truckloads of Reigel pale beer, and had the cases neatly stacked when a Jap bomb scored a direct hit, leaving not more than three dozen bottles. I never saw men any madder than we were when we came out of our foxholes and word went around they had blown up our beer."

"They'd moved us over to Madiun Field," said the Bombardier, "and we had your troubles and some more besides. When we first arrived there were no P-40's or anti-aircraft guns for miles to keep the Zeros up. But we did have three D-model Fortresses out of commission we were using for spare parts. So Lieutenant McGee dismounted their guns, and Master Sergeant Silva and I decided to mount them in holes around the airfield. At least these would keep off strafers."

Suppose there were no tomorrow—

Suppose there were no tomorrow? . . . Think about it for just a minute . . . No tomorrow for you, or your kid sister at home—or the brother who left for the Army yesterday. Did you ever think that we, who have had so few yesterdays, may have no tomorrows?

It has happened, you know. To Jack Feldman, and Bob Ernest—and fifteen others who sat in our classes just last term . . .

They will have no tomorrow. They died before they ever had a try at living . . . so that we might have our chance.

There are millions who were asked to give up more than a double feature at the Earle . . . or a spiffy, new pair of pumps for next week's formal. A soda is a pretty insignificant sacrifice, when you think of—

The kids in Russia, who live on a few ounces of cereal a day. They've never seen an ice cream soda.

The Polish boys and girls, who would be in school right now, just as we are . . . if there were any schools left.

The French youths who've never had a hamburger on a date—or any other time, for that matter. They are old, very old . . . older than you and I will ever be . . .

There are millions of them . . . in Norway . . . Holland . . . Denmark . . . Belgium . . . They would stare in amazement if they could be here to see—

A jalopy painted bright yellow. "The Tin You Love to Touch" printed in big, green letters on the back.

A high school senior, uncomfortable in his first tuxedo . . . calling for his date, looking nervous.

Millions of things that we take for granted . . .

"Hey, Maestro! Play 'Stardust'!"

. . . There is such a feeling of permanency in our tight little world. We'll go to school with the gang, today . . . and tomorrow . . .

But, WHAT IF THERE WERE NO TOMORROW? There's only one way to be sure, you know—

Buy War Bonds . . . That's a simple little phrase. It's the American way of saying what we mean in a few direct words. Buy War Bonds.

Yes—you and everybody must buy War Bonds. We've got to buy more and more, and more of 'em. Just get the idea into your head that your $18.75 might—just might end the war one-fifth of one second sooner. That maybe, in that one-fifth of a second, the boy next door could be on the receiving end of a bullet . . . Then you'll know it's worth it!

We've got to keep on plugging, saving, convincing. Giving our pin money . . .

Tell everybody—sell everybody! We can't take no for an answer . . . tomorrow—and tomorrow—and tomorrow.

Let's All KEEP BACKING THE ATTACK!
